Play Guide

Travel from the playroom to an imaginary café and discover the benefits of pretend play! Whether your child is playing solo or with others, they'll be developing their creative thinking and emotional skills.

FREE PLAY

Encourage little ones to play and explore the toy as they please! They can create various imaginary scenarios and express both positive and negative feelings through play. Parents—observe your kids to learn about their feelings!

Single

Double
$2.00

INTERACTIVE PLAY

Try role-playing with your child: act as a customer and order drinks from your little barista! You can also teach specific emotional skills, like self-regulation and empathy, by setting up imaginary scenarios using dolls as “customers.” Allow your child to create solutions for the following scenarios:

Scenario 1

A customer orders a complicated drink that’s not on the menu.

Scenario 2

A customer in a big rush asks your little barista to speed up their order.

Scenario 3

A customer at the end of the line has a baby who is crying because they want milk!
